PEA may walk on Wednesday

PLYMOUTH—Members of the Plymouth Education Association may not be in school on Wednesday, if schools open today (Monday) in the Crestwood School District with non-union teachers in the classrooms.

That is the brunt of a pact ratified by Plymouth teachers last year, and if earlier statements by PEA President Dolly Carter are backed up by the membership's actions, Plymouth teachers will be out on the streets for the second time this school year.

Meeting in a regular workshop session Saturday morning the Plymouth Community School Board voted a get tough stance if teachers walk off the job on Wednesday.

IN A PREPARED statement the board noted that it "has a valid contract with its teachers," and "that it (the Plymouth schools) s in no way involved in the current conflict in the Crestwood School District."

Noting that a work stoppage would "wreak unwarranted damage to the education of the children" of the Plymouth School District the board adopted a three-point position on the issue:

- The board has no intention to renegotiate the school calendar and eliminate vacations or extend school beyond the scheduled June 28th closing.
- The board and the community will honor the negotiated contract and expects the employes to do the same.
- The board will take whatever appropriate action is required to maintain and operate its schools.

Attempts to contact Mrs. Carter on Friday and Saturday proved fruitless and several other PEA officers contacted declined comment.

One officer did state there was a likelihood that no position would be voiced locally and that all information should be obtained from the Michigan Education Association. "We will let our common view be represented by that office," he said.

Mrs. Carter was reportedly meeting with other school district teacher representatives and officials from the MEA on Friday to map strategy for the possible walkout.

THE SCHEDULED walkouts are a result of an agreement signed by local education associations in 17 Wayne County school districts prior to the end of the school year last June.

The pact called for the support of teachers from any district which might fire education association members en masse during a contract dispute. The local unions, representing more than 6,000 teachers, pledged to walk out in protest of any such action and remain on strike until fired teachers were reinstated.

When Crestwood teachers were fired two weeks ago, the Michigan Education Association (MEA), to which all 17 districts belong, began to move to implement that pact.

Despite the threat, the Crestwood Board of Education followed the firings with a call to out-of-work teachers to interview for the 184 jobs. To date, as many as 500 teachers have reportedly applied for the jobs.

When it became apparent that the Crestwood district intended to open school with a whole new slate of teachers, union leaders from all of the teacher associations signing the pact met to reaffirm their commitment to the fired teachers.

THE GROUP SET Wednesday for the walkout because a number of the districts involved did not return to classes until this morning, although some had returned from holiday vacations last Thursday.

According to one union spokesman, the walkouts were scheduled two days after the planned reopening of Crestwood schools with new teachers because of the difficulty of coordinating such an action the first day back.

The spokesman said that "as time passes" it is expected the overwhelming majority of teachers in the districts supporting Crestwood will remain out of the classrooms. Moreover, the source said, American Federation of Teachers (AFT) locals such as Detroit, Taylor and Melvindale have shown interest in the action and may join the MEA locals.

At last week's coordinating meeting of teacher leaders, MEA Executive Secretary Herman W. Coleman told the group that the planned walkout should not be construed as a "sympathy strike," but rather as an attempt to protect the bargaining rights of public employes in Michigan.

He referred to the replacement teachers hired in the Crestwood district as "scabs" and said, "If they are used Monday (today), then the commitments we have will grow."

A tired CEP band returns from the sun

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH—A tired but happy marching band returned to the wintry blasts of home Thursday, after basking in the warm applause that lined its march through the 1975 Orange Bowl Parade and the balmy streets of Disney World.

The 172-member Plymouth Centennial Park Marching Band, accompanied by a sizable contingent of adult chaperones, boarded a plane for Florida Saturday, Dec. 28. The group found time between two performances at Disney World and one in the Orange Bowl Parade to bathe in the Atlantic and tour Cape Kennedy and Disney World.

"It was terrific," band conductor James Griffith said of the five-day trip. "I was extremely proud of their performances. Too bad we don't have a tape recording of the comments along the way."

THE BAND was one of 16 out-of-state groups which participated in the parade, Griffith said. The bands were selected from 556 applicants on the basis of tape recordings, photographs and recommendations.

"The Plymouth community can certainly be proud of their young representatives in Florida," Griffith said. "Everyone along the way had nothing but the finest compliments for their behavior.

"The people who worked at Disney World said they asked one (high school) band to leave the week before because of shoplifting," Griffith explained.

"Our guide wasn't going to work with high school bands this year because of bad experiences he had the last two years. He was just beside himself with praise for these young people (from Plymouth)."

Dr. Daniel Chatterley, who accompanied the group as its physician, heaped more praise on the band.

"This was a very wholesome and happy group," Dr. Chatterley said. "There were no problems with drugs or anything— just a few blisters on feet. I think that's important."

GRIFFITH SAID 50 senior members of the band participated in the Rose Bowl Parade two years ago. The band last year marched in Hudson's Thanksgiving parade in downtown Detroit.

Trips to the Orange and Rose bowls are too costly to take every year, Griffith said. Each student was assessed $250 for the trip. Although students will receive a small rebate, that's a lot of money for most ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th graders.

"When you babysit for 50 cents an hour, it takes a lot of time to save up $250," he said. "We had one family who sent three children on this trip."

But the cost was worth it, according to most students.

"I thought it was fun," said Lauren Chatterley, a 10th grader who plays the flute. "The weather was really nice, and I liked Disney World and going to the beach."

Senior drum major Bob DeLano described the trip as "warm."

"THE PART I'll probably remember the most was the trip to Disney World," DeLano said. "Playing at a parade like that is always exciting. People were saying we were the best band there."

Senior Pam Wehmeyer said, "I liked watching other bands at Disney World," and ninth grader Lorie Vick added, "I thought it was pretty well organized. There was always a bus to take us somewhere."

One highlight of the trip, according to Griffith, was the Orange Bowl football game between Notre Dame and Alabama.

"The band was evenly divided between rooters for Alabama and Notre Dame," he said.

Senior Paul Bacheldor, who described the trip as "super" and a "real killer," participated in the 1973 Rose Bowl Parade as well as this year's Orange Bowl.

"We're just super lucky," Bacheldon said. "It's just a privilege. There are no two ways about it. We (seniors) are the only class that got to do that. We should thank mom and dad for having us in the right year."

Gold investment shaky, area experts caution

By DARLENE STINSON

Gold sales got off to a trickle last week in western Wayne County, with warning signals flashed to consumers by financial experts.

Investing in gold is a shaky business, according to many area bank spokesmen, a local coin dealer and a stockbroker. Persons dipping into their pockets to invest in gold, the experts say, should know what they are getting into.

While many financial institutions such as the National Bank of Detroit, Bank of the Commonwealth, Manufacturers Bank and City National Bank are offering gold for sale, they are not promoting its purchase.

OTHER BANKS and coin dealers are refusing to sell gold to private investors, legal for the first time since 1933.

A federal consumer publication warns gold consumers to buy from reputable dealers such as large banks, commodity exchanges and gold manufacuring firms. Gold markings that identify the bar's quality as 99.5 per cent to 99.9 per cent pure can easily be falsified as well as the markings that identify its weight.

The theory behind gold investment, many financial experts say, is to build a financial hedge against inflation. Judging from recent years, when the price of gold has risen from $40 to nearly $200 an ounce, bullion investors believe the price of gold rises faster than the inflation rate.

BUT, like other investment pathways, investing in gold is a speculative venture. After climbing to Monday's record of high of nearly $200 an ounce on the London market before U.S. gold sales opened Tuesday, gold prices dipped to Thursday's London price of $175 per ounce.

A spokesman for Bank of the Commonwealth, which offers gold at its main office in downtown Detroit, attributes the price slump to supply outweighing demand.

All gold dealers surveyed in westrn Wayne County Thursday reported fewer gold sales than originally anticipated.

Jerry Nissen, partner in charge of financial services at the stockbroker firm of Manley, Bennett, McDonald & Co., foresees a possible short-term increase in gold prices. Over a long-term period, he fears the bottom may fall out from under consumers' gold investments.

"WE HAVEN'T done an extensive evaluation yet," Nissen said of his firm, which sels shares in a mutual fund called Bars of Gold. "But, generally speaking, I would say it (gold investment) has considerable risk. I think many individuals think gold is a safe investment. At $50 or $100 an ounce I think it is a good investment.

"The gist of my concern," Nissen said, "Is that I think gold has far exceeded its intrinsic value of a precious metal. The only thing that's holding gold at its current level is speculation (on the part of foreign investors) that Americans will buy gold at its current levels."

Some economists favor demonetizing gold, Nissen noted. If gold no longer served as the base of the U.S. monetary system, the price of gold would be based on its value as a precious metal. That could mean a plunge in price.

"With gold as a strong underpinning for monetary systems, it has become a cumbersome basis. Many economists would like to demolish gold as the basis. I'm not forecasting it will or will not be done. I'm just saying people buying gold should be aware of that.

"These foreign investors run over here and sell all these well-intentioned Americans gold, and maybe it could go back to $75 an ounce," Nissen said.

BESIDES EXPOSING themselves to the speculative risk, gold investors absorb considerable costs over the market value of gold. Although those costs vary at different banks, they include commission, sales tax and shipping and packaging charges.

At the First National Bank of Plymouth, for example, a $1,000 gold purchase entails an additional fee of $100, according to vice president Paul Perrot. When the invester wishes to sell, he must pay a commission fee of three per cent plus an assay fee to determine the quality of the gold.

According to a spokesman for City National Bank, assay fees run from $40 to $80, while the assaying process takes at least two weeks. Any gold bullion taken outside its place of purchase is subject to the assaying fee.

MANY BANKS, however, have plans to slash the additional costs.

The assaying fee of gold sold by the Bank of the Commonwealth is eliminated, if investors keep a plastic seal wrapped around the bullion. Four per cent sales tax, shipping charges and assaying fees are eliminated from a minimum five-ounce purchase of gold from the First National Bank of Plymouth, if investors take advantage of a "safekeeping" program, under which investors do not physically handle the gold.

Manufacturers Bank offers purchasers of 10 or more ounces of gold a similar safekeeping program, as does City National Bank.

WILLIAM J. BONO refuses to sell bullion in his coin shop at 35000 Warren, Westland, "because of the hidden costs involved."

"I love the American public," Bono said. "I don't like to see them (the public) get nailed, so I won't handle it (bullion). The guy who wants to spend a couple of hundred dollars on gold is better off buying coins."

Gold coins are not subject to assaying fees, Bono explained, because counterfeit coins, unlike bullion, are easily detected by coin dealers.

"There are going to be many people who are misinformed when they buy bullion," Bono said. "They won't know why they have to pay an assaying fee. There's going to be a lot of unscrupulous people around who will try to counterfeit the bullion. Generally speaking, a counterfeit coin would be more detectable."

Bono, who has sold gold coins for years, said most of his customers are collectors, more interested in the age and condition of coins.

"Generally speaking, I'm much more oriented toward the collector," he said. "In the last few years, there have been some people buying gold as a hedge against inflation and as a long-term investment. Then there's the individual who's afraid of anything but cold, hard cash. He doesn't want to wake up in the morning and find his (paper) money has been devaluated."

"I think peoble are going to get stuck," Beitner said. "I don't think any great price rise will stay."

Beitner ruled against purchasing 24-karat or pure gold jewelry for investment purposes because of the additional costs involved in jewelry making.

"I hate to see jewelry as an investment," he said.

Donald Mandich, executive vice president of Detroit Bank and Trust, said his bank has refused to deal in gold.

"THE WHOLE PRICE of gold has been so speculative, we think it's been over-promoted," Mandich said. "We don't want to assist people in getting burned. We feel we're bankers. We deal in money, not in commodities like gold. We decided gold was not something we should deal in."

Local residents aren't flocking to buy gold

Plymouth and Canton residents could care less about a new law, legalizing gold bullion possession for the first time in 41 years.

Although gold sales opened Tuesday at many banks across the nation, only one area resident had filed his golden order form at a local bank by Friday.

The customer ordered less than 10 ounces of gold at the North Territorial-Sheldon branch of the National Bank of Detroit, 253 Sheldon, said branch manager Al Seeburger, who declined to disclose the name of the customer or the exact amount purchased.

"I was anticipating much more interest and many more inquiries," Seeburger said. "I certainly would have anticipated more than we've had in terms of sales."

ONLY CASUAL inquiries about the precious metal disturbed the daily routine at two other NBD branch offices and at the First National Bank of Plymouth, where investors may order gold.

"I've had casual mention of it, but no one seriously considered it," said Paul Perrot, vice president of the First National Bank of Plymouth. "I didn't expect that much."

The picture was much the same at two other NBD branch offices.

Claude Cornwell, assistant banking officer at the branch at 306 S. Main, said only two customers had even mentioned the word "gold."

"As far as inquiries, people are curious, but that's about all," Cornwell said. "No one's actually come in and put down dollars to buy gold. They just come in and kid around. At this office, I really couldn't visualize anyone wanting gold except for a keepsake."

Fewer than a dozen persons inquired about gold at the Ann Arbor Road—Harvey branch, 980 Ann Arbor Road, according to branch manager Betty Pint.

"There were a few curious people, but no buyers," Mrs. Pint said. "I really wasn't anticipating much in this area. I just didn't think people would have that concern."

NBD CUSTOMERS who wish to purchase gold may order the metal at local branches. Besides paying the current market price, purchasers must pay a four per cent sales tax, a three to six per cent commission, depending on the size of the purchase, and a minimum fee of $20 to cover shipping and handling.

At the First National Bank of Plymouth, gold purchasers pay the market price, a four per cent sales tax, a four per cent commission and a shipping fee of $1.50 an ounce. That means the purchaser of $1,000 worth of gold must pay an additional fee of $100 over its market value.

In addition, the investor must pay a commission fee of three per cent and an assay fee of $40 to $80 to determine the quality of the gold when he wants to sell the bullion. Any gold bullion taken outside its place of purchase is subject to the assaying fee.

To slash some of the costs at the First National Bank of Plymouth, a safekeeping service is offered to customers who purchase five ounces or more. Through storing the gold in a bank in Minnesota, the service eliminates the sales tax, shipping charges and assaying requirement, since the danger of persons counterfeiting the gold is removed.

SPOKESMEN FOR Detroit Bank and Trust and Michigan National Bank say their banks have refused to sell gold and believe bullion is a shaky investment because of the additional costs of purchase and its fluctuating market value.

Even banks that sell gold do not promote its purchase.

"We are not actively soliciting or recommending people to buy it," said Perrot. "We recommend that if they do buy gold to hold it in safekeeping.

"It's really a commodity, and we really don't want to get into that type of field," he said. "We're not encouraging it, but if someone wants it, we'll give it to them."

Seniors project needs new site

PLYMOUTH—The search is on for another site for the Pilgrim Towers senior citizens housing complex in Plymouth.

That is the rsult of a meeting last week between representatives of the Pilgrim Non Profit Housing Authority, the city, State Sen. Carl Pursell and Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

City manager Fred Yockey said, "It's too early to know if the whole project is dead or if there are alternative sites."

Late last fall the PNHA received word from MSHDA that the site at Ann Arbor Trail and Hamilton was not acceptable because it was too close to a railroad and too close to an industrial area.

A search at that time proved fruitless and the PNHA resubmitted the original site in the hope that it could be approved on appeal.

THE MEETING last week apparently killed any hope for a 200-unit senior citizens housing project on that site, but it left PNHA president James Houk "very encouraged."

"The state is still interested in building a senior citizens project in the city of Plymouth, and I feel they know that the need is here," Houk said. He added that he was very encouraged to see city representatives taking an active interest in the project.

The meeting was attended by city commissioner Harold Guenther, Mayor Beverly McAninch and City Manager Fred Yockey.

D'I hope that now we do have their help," Houk said. "We can't do it without the help of the city commission, mayor and city manager."

THE PROPERTY on Ann Arbor Trail is owned by the city, which purchased the property in July of 1973. The mortgage is held by National Bank of Detroit, with the bank agreeing to accept only the interest payments on the loan until the actual project was begun.

MSHDA, PNHA and city officials were scheduled to meet last Friday to look at several possibilities for alternative sites in the downtown Plymouth area.

"The downtown area is a viable area for a project like this," said Yockey, "but the state housing officials will have to determine if the price is reasonable and whether it is workable to tear existing buildings down."

Canton chamber plans fair

CANTON—The township chamber of commerce may be small in membership, but that doesn't seem to affect its plans. In conjunction with the Belleville chapter, Canton Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring a trade fair May 16-18.

The fair will be held at the Belleville Fair Grounds and Bart Berg, president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce, hopes to attract all kinds of exhibits. "We'd like to get representatives from industry, commercial, retail, arts, crafts, and even have a flea market."

Berg hopes the fair will also feature a display by the "bedding growers," farmers who raise vegetable plants that are later sold to "hobby" farmers and consumers for their own gardens.

The fair will have entertainment at night and Berg expects concession stands and food will be available all through the three-day event.

Money is not the chief objective of the fair, explains Berg. " We're tying to educate area shoppers about the local merchants and manufacturers that are here. We want consumers to know they can do a lot of their shopping in Canton and nearby. They don't have to go far away for many goods and services."

The fair grounds are located off the Belleville exit on I-94, near Quirk Road. "We're using the fairground because it is set up for this kind of venture. It has all sorts of buildings there, and there is nothing in Canton that could accomodate the anticipated size of this event."

Berg expects the Canton turnout won't be diminished because the fair will be in Belleville. In fact, he hopes to attract exhibitors from all over western Wayne County.

"I hope we get people from Dearborn and Plymouth as well," he says. "If the thing really gets off the ground this year I hope it will turn into a trade fair for all the western region of the county."

Berg is confident the fair will appeal to all. "We'll be catering to all walks of life and I am sure a lot of people will enjoy it."

Tax repeal prompts watch on prices

Suburban shoppers are getting the tax break they approved nearly two months ago.

That was the conclusion of a preliminary survey of supermarkets in Livonia and Plymouth, a taken by the Livonia Jaycees for the Michigan Citizens' Lobby.

The Jaycees monitored food prices for the last two weeks in December and this week to make sure stores didn't raise their prices.

The Jaycees' R. William Joyner said Friday a check of area stores showed prices remained stable following New Year's day, when the four per cent tax repeal on food and prescription drugs took effect.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES are these supermarket tags posted over taxable and non-taxable merchandise. (Staff photos)

BUT HE noted that monitors spotted price increases on several products not covered in their standard form which listed 10 items for volunteers to survey.

The feared long lines of customers at the checkout line failed th materialize since most stores had new cash registers which automatically tabulate tax on non-food articles and exempt food and drugs.

Some stores merely adjusted their cash registers so that the merchandise can be automatically separated.

At least one store chain, Farmer Jack, took action in two areas to make it easier for shoppers and cashiers to know what articles are tax exempt.

Prices are stamped with an "n" if the items are non-tax exempt. There are printed signs on the shelves indicating which items are taxable and which are exempt.

Joining Mr. and Mrs. Joyner on their monitoring of two stores Thursday afternoon was Barbara Grossman, Michigan Citizens' Lobby director, whose group led the successful petition drive last year to put the tax repeal on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Michigan voters approved the repeal by a 56-44 margin. Illinois is the only industrial state which taxes food and drugs, she added.

In Livonia, Plymouth and Northville, 15 stores were monitored by 15 volunteers, of whom 12 were Jaycees.

Monitors in the Wayne-Oakland-Macomb County region are to report their findings in time for a Monday morning press conferenc scheduled by Ms. Grossman.

She said there were 200 monitors in the three-county area with volunteers coming from Jaycees, Jaycettes and Detroit neighborhood groups.

SHE SAID the Citizens' Lobby will continue to work toward tax equity plans in the Legislature and that funds lost through the sales tax repeal are made up so that middle-income families would realize the tax cut.

"We will lobby the Legislature very hard" on alternatives to make up the lost state revenues and may offer its own proposals.

Schedule problem caused crash

This is a continuation of events connected with the railroad wreck four miles west of Plymouth in 1907.

1:30 p.m. The train carrying the Detroit doctors arrived and began preparing the injured for removal. Iva Bentley saw a young boy sitting in the grass, cradling his dead mother's head in his lap. He held an umbrella to keep the hot sun from her face.

The Saginaw and the Grand Rapids wreckers were at the scene, beginning the job of making the line passable. The place was swarming with people, including coach passengers, farmers, and a large portion of the population of Plymouth.

2:00 p.m. Walter Ebert arrived at the wreck. Appalled at the scene, he recalls that he was "sick for a week afterward." Ebert helped to carry stretchers bearing the dead. They were placed in a baggage coach for return to Ionia which they had left in high spirits a few hours earlier.

Ebert watched as one of the wreckers loaded a demolished locomotive onto a flat car. The Saginaw wrecker remained at the scene for three days.

Shortly after 2 p.m., a relief train with the dead and some of the injured headed for Ionia. Another relief train bearing about 35 of the injured headed the other way for Detroit.

5:30 p.m. Five-year old Loverne Sly and her sister, eight-year old Elizabeth, could hardly wait for the chores and supper to be over at the farmhouse home on Five Mile, between Haggerty and Bradner, in Plymouth Township. Finally, father Silas Sly hitched the black driving mare to the surrey. The family headed west on Five Mile Road.

The horse was hitched at the corner of Napier, and the Sly family walked up to the wreck. Loverne still recalls seeing "the coaches jumbled and smashed, the red parlor coach seats set up on the banks, the wreckers hoisting the debris, and the swarms of people quietly moving about and talking with old friends."

The final tally was 33 dead and 100 injured. Included among those killed were Conductor Pixley, fireman Knowles and brakeman Cowan of the passenger train. Engineer Alvard suffered a sprained ankle. Engineer Rogers of the freight train was scalded and bruised.

The Plymouth Mail, on July 26, reported that "instances of miraculous escapes were numerous. One couple past seventy was in the coach thrown high in the air, helped themselves out, walked to Plymouth and ate dinner at the Commercial Hotel."

Michigan State Telephone Company set up temporary phones on a pole and let the survivors phone their families without charge.

DEPUTY SHERIFF VandeCar took a large quantity of articles belonging to the injured and the dead to Plymouth village hall. Some looting was reported. One of the doctors lost his $18 cuff links, set aside as he administered to the injured.

A front page story in the Detroit Free Press on July 21, 1907, quoted engineer Wilson Rogers, of the freight, as saying, from his hospital bed, that he lost his orders and forgot about the excursion train. Conductor Hamilton is reported to have said, "I suppose they will hold me responsible for this."

The Plymouth Mail, however, said the collision occurred because the entire crew of the freight train misunderstood the order. They thought the passenger train was due in Salem 15 minutes after it actually left there.

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

"To a crooked line of dots in the train orders carried by the crew of the freight train, is now traced the terrible tragedy," wrote the Plymouth Mail. "Four men—the conductor, engineer, fireman and brakeman— all read this order, 'Salem 9:25' when it should have been 'Salem 9:10'.

"This was due to the fact that the figures do not align with the names of the stations, the leader line from name to figures running aslant and bringing them almost directly opposite the line above that for which they were intended. The misreading of the orders gave the freight crew confidence that they had time to unload two loads of gravel."

ANOTHER DEATH was indirectly attributable to the wreck. Three days after the crash, when the Saginaw wrecker had finished its job at Van Side cut, it moved into Plymouth. The wrecker foreman was standing on the pilot which hit the cross track "diamond" where the two railroads converge.

The foreman was dragged under the engine. He was dead when extricated. Charle Ebert, Walter's father, helped to remove the man from under the engine.

Clyde Smith tells me that the terrain where the accident happened looks much the same today as it did when the two trains came together 67 years ago. Considering the state of passenger train service, the likelihood of a freight meeting an excursion train in Van Side cut today is highly remote.

Those who were residents of Plymouth in 1907 still talk about the Salem wreck. Those in Ionia, who lost relatives in the accident, never forgot it for the rest of their lives.

This account was based on conversations I had with Clyde Smith, Ezra Rotnour, Walter Ebert and Loverne Sly. I am especially indebted to Miss Sly for permitting me to draw from a paper about the wreck which she wrote and which she read to the Plymouth Historical Society in April, 1956.

THIS BOY AND THIS GIRL ARE MISSING

This boy and this girl are missing out on a lot of things they could be having as carriers for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. They could be earning such things as money, merchandise prizes and tickets to special events.

But earning pocket money and winning special prizes are just two of the nice things that can happen to carriers. There are bigger advantages. A carrier goes into business for himself. At an early age, he or she learns how to get along with people. They do a bit of bookkeeping. They learn responsibility. They gain additional confidence.

Is your child missing out on these things? If one of your children is 12 years old or more, we suggest you get in touch with us, and hear about our carrier program.

If you're interested, fill out the coupon below and send it to the Circulation Department of our newspaper.

Market rallies at year end

By RICHARD GOLD

PLYMOUTH—If 1975 should continue the way it started and 1974 ended, the nation's economic woes might be over. Business was booming at Manley, Bennett, McDonald and Co., Plymouth's stock brokerage firm, on the last day of the year, and the New York market registered its highest rise in two months.

There are several indices computed by Dow Jones to indicate trends in the capital market, and all were positive for the last day of trading. The Dow Jones Industrial Average, an average of 30 "bluechip" industrial stocks was up 12½ points over the start of the day. The utility index, an average of 15 utility stocks, was up 2.07 points, and the transportation index, composed of 20 representative transportation stocks was up 2.17 points.

The American Stock Exchange and the over the counter market also showed healthy increases.

MYRON E. SMITH, a partner in the brokerage firm, explained the heavy activity. "It was a very busy day because investors were selling to take their tax losses before the end of the year. This means that people were selling their stocks at a loss and writing the loss off aginst their income tax."

The market as a whole closed much lower than it did in 1973, and undoubtedly there were many tax losses to be had. The Dow Jones Industrial Average, the most popular market indicator, closed at 616.04 in 1974 compared to 850.86 a year ago. Tuesday's mark evidenced a decrease of 234 points.

Despite the introduction of gold sales on the last day of the year, market activity was heavy, the highest in three weeks, and Smith expects the sale of gold "to have an insignifigant effect on the volume of trading on the stock market."

According to Smith, most investors' knowledge of the gold market is marginal, and as a result most people will avoid dealing in the new commodity entirely.

THE PROSPECTS for 1975 are good, says Smith. "We look for 1975 to be a much better year." He cites several reasons for his optimism.

"Now we can settle down with the new administration since there is less turmoil in Washington. We expect the prime interest rate (the lowest available interest rate— usually for large borrowers) to fall and with it the price of money should decrease. Inflation is abating, and we think the market will reflect these positive changes."

The stock market slide of 1974 was the result of Watergate, galloping inflation, and high interest rates, explained Smith, and he expects these problems to be gone or signifigantly diminished this year.

While trading was light on the first business day of the new year, (Jan. 2), the market continued its upswing and the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 632.04, more than 15 points higher than the last day of 1974.

County projects solid waste plan

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is expected to act on a county solid waste disposal plan early next year which would include a waste reduction plant in Livonia with a capacity of 1,200 tons per day.

Although plans for a countywide disposal system have been the subject of study for 10 years, the county board is likely to act following state House and Senate approval establishing the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) as the solid waste disposal agent.

According to George Bingham, county public works director, two voluntary approaches for solid waste disposal have failed. And now the legislative plan, which is awaiting Milliken's signature, would have the state implement solid waste disposal if voluntary plans aren't enacted within two years.

BINGHAM CONTENDS the solid waste issue is a crucial one.

"Most municiplaities rely on landfill including Detroit," Bingham said at a Dec. 17 informational meeting set up by the county on the issue of solid waste plans.

"Now we've just about run out of landfill areas in Wayne County, and you can understand that neighboring counties don't want to be the target of landfill disposing of Wayne County's waste.

"This is a pressing problem," he said. "Studies indicate we'll run out of landfill areas by 1980."

BINGHAM cited two voluntary deadlines for municiplaities to come up with their own solid waste solutions, which, in his opinion, failed.

"In early 1973 the Legislature ordered all municipalities to submit a solid waste plan by July 1 of the same year and then moved the deadline to July, 1, 1974.

"The voluntary approach has been negative. In 1973 the municipalities didn't even try to submit plans, and last July the results were incomplete and haphazard," he said.

WHILE CITING the need for a state plan, Bingham is not in full agreement with the most recent legislative action.

"The DNR would be trying to conserve natural resources by retrieving valuable components of solid waste such as glass and metal and the heat value of disposal. It is seeking to recycle the resources back into the economy.

"But one provision of the bill is alarming to me and that is the Legislature granting the DNR power to borrow money to build disposal plants and then sell them or lease them to private operations.

"This makes possible the lending of the state's credit for private gain.

"But since the voluntary systemt isn't working, the way the mechanism is set, up the solution will have to come from the state. The voluntary approach is still possible if municipalities can implement their own plans within two years, but if they can't the state will step in."

BINGHAM estimates that one-third of Michigan governmental units are seeking a county approach to solid waste disposal; one-third are trying individual methods, and the remaining one-third are clustering with neighboring communities for disposal operations.

The overall county plan calls for four plants in Detroit, one in Livonia, one in east Dearborn and one in the Lincoln Park- Southgate area.

Bingham says studies show that industrial wastes most concern disposal planners.

He referred to a Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) study which revealed that SEMCOG municipalities produce 34,000 tons of solid waste a day, 17,200 tons of which are the products of industry. Residential areas contribute 6,120 tons daily, while the commercial segment produces 6,120 tons of daily waste.

THE MOST recent plans for a county waste disposal system have been drawn up by the County Road Commission which may or may not be asked to implement the plan, Bingham said.

"With the changing faces the election will bring to the board of commissioners in January, the present board has not touched the solid waste disposal issue," Bingham said. "But I fully expect a decision on the plan by January."

State recording bill vetoed by Milliken

A bill which would have prohibited the recording of sounds for sale without the consent of the owner has been vetoed by Gov. William Milliken.

Despite the veto, Milliken praised the bill saying that it would provide state penalties for pirating of materials that are given federal copyright protection.

His veto stemmed from his belief that "the bill goes beyond an appropriate response to the problem and would prohibit reproduction of recordings which are presently public property and not subject to federal copyright provisions."

Bills signed into law by Milliken include:

- A bill to encourage the development of solid waste recycling systems and to provide for a statewide solid waste management and resource recovery program.

The law creates an 11-member State Resource Recovery Commission in the Debartment of Resources.

"This bill makes Michigan unique in the country," Milliken said. "It holds great promise for bringing government and private enterprise together in turning the state away from a philosophy of disposal to one of recycling."

The commission will adopt a state solid waste plan developed by the DNR and work with local units of government and private enterprise in implementing a new state waste handling system.

- A bill which allows townships to license business establishments—giving them better control over "nuisance" businesses.
- A bill allowing townships to charge all properties on a water system with hydrant service for fire protection benefits regardless of whether or not the property is hooked up to the available water system.
- A bill which extends the original criminal jurisdiction of municipal courts to include misdemeanors and offenses which are punishable by a fine or imprisonment of up to one year or both.
- A measure which exempts from property taxes property owned jointly by local units of government, or by non-profit corporations owned by local units of government.

Also exempt are personal and real property of non-profit theaters and non-profit homes for the aged if owned by religious or fraternal societies.

- A bill which requires a licensed nursing home or home for the aged establish separate accounts for the personal funds of the patients and that it post a surety bond equal to 125 per cent of the average amount of patient funds.
- A bill which implements the provisions of the Vietnam Veterans Bonus approved by voters last Nov. 5 authorizing the state to borrow $205 million to provide for a cash bonus of up to $600 for combat veterans and up to $450 to non-combat veterans.

SC sattelite open house is Wednesday

Schoolcraft College will be showing off new facilities in its Garden City Instructional Center during a meeting Wednesday, Jan. 8, beginning at 8 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the board of trustee's suee sessi and tour the new facilities at the satellite campus.

The instructional center is located at Middle Belt and Florence Roads, just north of Cherry Hill Road in Garden City. It is on the east side of Middle Belt, and visitors may park in the lot just south of the school, near a neighboring church.

Schoolcraft trustees have scheduled their monthly study session meeting at the satellite campus to encourage residents to see the new facilities, which include a typing laboratory, biology laboratory and resource center.

The building was once an elementary school owned by the Garden City School District. Because of declining enrollments, the Garden City School District has allowed Schoolcraft to use the building as an instructional center.

THE MOST RECENT recipient of the Clarence M. Burton Memorial Scholarship was Plymouth resident Marilyn S. Husband at a recent Detroit College of Law honors convocation. The award was presented by Clarence M. Burton, son of the famed historian of early Detroit and founder of Burton Abstract and Title Company for which the award was named.

Job outlook not bleak for '75 grads

College graduates in 1975 will not be as severely affected by unemployment as their blue-collar counterparts, especially if they are members of a minority or women.

The prediction was made by the 1974-75 Recruiting Trends Survey completed by Michigan State University's Placement Services.

Despite an anticipated seven per cent decrease in campus visits by employers during the current school year, MSU Placement Director John D. Shingleton says: "Graudates who recognize the work ethic, roll up their sleeves and try harder, will get jobs."

Because of the economic squeeze, Shingleton says college graduates still will be underemployed, especially those in the nontechnical areas.

Minorities and women are definitely favored in the technical and business disciplines, according to the survey of 220 employers.

Almost twice as many employers have recruitment programs specifically designed for minorities than for women.

"With the large number of employers emphasizing the recruitment of minorities and women, the white male's bargaining position is further eroded," the report states.

New codes puzzle county

State-adopted plumbing, electrical and mechanical codes are on the horizon in Michigan, but Wayne County officials are puzzled about their role in enforcing them when the codes are adopted.

The Wayne County Health Department has been designated to enforce the newly adopted state building code, but Catch 22 seems to have been written into the rules.

According to Glenn Brown, director of the environmental division of the health department, the county provides building code enforcement only for municipalities which do not adopt their own codes.

"WE'RE SUPPOSED to be carrying out the responsibility but we don't have much authority," Brown said in a Dec. 17 county informational meeting on building codes.

"At best we can receive complaints, investigate them and try to resolve them, but if we can't, the complainants go back to the state. The county is not going to become involved.

"We have not been authorized any additional staffing and we have no county appeal board. We have a local responsibility. But any appeal would go to the state and then to the courts."

State's only master chef relies on 'sense of taste'

By SUE ROSIEK

Robert Breithaupt of Livonia is wearing two hats these days. Besides the traditional white chef's insignia, Breithaupt is director of culinary arts and food services at Schoolcraft College, for which he wears a manager's cap.

Breithaupt recently was awarded the rank of executive master chef by the American Culinary Federation (ACF) and is currently the only master chef in Michigan.

"The title was the result of schooling coupled with many years of experience," says the jovial chef.

Although he doens't prepare many meals at the college he does do a lot of cooking at home for his family. "Sunday dinner is my specialty."

Breithaupt began his cooking career in Flint, where he worked for a catering company that serviced many of the large auto plant cafeterias. "We served about 10,000 meals a day," says Breithaupt. "That took some careful planning."

He later moved to Detroit and became executive chef at what formerly was Yeaman's Knife and Fork Club. For about 12 years he owned and operated a summer resort and restaurant in northern Michigan before accepting the Schoolcraft position in 1966.

"My father was a teacher and a chef, and teaching is something I have always wanted to do," explains Breithaupt. His son also is a chef-manager at a local company and Breithaupt says his grandson shows signs of carrying on the family tradition.

BESIDES HIS Schoolcraft responsibilities Breithaupt is president of the Michigan Chefs Association and a national board member of the American Culinary Federation. He helped outline the ACF's certification standards for chef members in the United States.

"Cooking is a profession and we (ACF) want it recognized as such," says Breithaupt explaining the reasons for certification.

Steps in the ACF certification program include a three year apprenticeship or two years in a college culinary arts program, Achievement levels are: certified cook, working chef, pastry chef, executive chef and executive master chef.

The ACF has chapters in 46 states and some 8,000 members in Michigan.

DISCUSSING COOKING technique, Breithaupt says the most difficult item a chef masters is the "fine sense of taste."

"It not only has to be acceptable but extremely good," he explains.

Breithaupt feels one of a chef's most desirable qualities is his ability to manage and share knowledge with his fellow workers or students.

Another important aspect to cooking, says Breithaupt, is experimentation. Despite his hectic and demanding managerial schedule at the college, Chef Breithaupt allows time for creating.

Many of his specialties are featured on the appetizer menu at Vargo's restaurant in Livonia.

THEY INCLUDE "Oysters Breithaupt," a combination of julienne mushrooms, diced shrimp and minced shallots in a lobster sauce generously laced with brandy, then baked with oysters.

Chef Robert Breithaupt demonstrates a basic but essential preparation technique (Photographed by Bob Woodring).

Another is "Scampi Provencal," a delectable seafood dish with scampi sauteed in butter and simmered in a rich tomato sauce accented with garlic and served on rice pilaf.

Breithaupt enjoys dining on fish and particularly octopus, calamarie (devil fish), Dover sole and red snapper.

BREITHAUPT, HOWEVER, doesn't believe white wine is only for fish or fowl and red wine is strictly for meats. "Order what you enjoy, not what you think you are supposed to order."

Breithaupt expresses disappointment in restaurants around the Detroit metropolitan area and gives the area about a 4½ rating on a one to 10 scale of excellence.

"Most local eatings spots offer good eating, but not always good dining," contends Breithaupt.

He lists New Orleans and San Francisco as cities that offer excellent cuisine.

SOME OF Breithaupt's favorite local restaurants are Vargo's in Livonia, the Drawbridge in Northville, and the Money Tree and London Chop House in Detroit.

For cooks, who like to experiment in their own kitchens Breithaupt recommends using the "Encyclopedia of Cookery," a 13-volume 8,000-page edition of recipes, meal planning tips and serving suggestions.

Crepes Suzette discovery, naming by happenstance

When Lautrec was sketching Jane Avril,
Van Gogh was painting by a mill.
Monet would walk the riverside and Gaugin just tried and tried and tried to make a stew he called ragout with lots of bread, some wine and brew.
The traditional chefs kept face the same
While Escoffier just rose to fame.

Ah, yes! Those were the days of the Belle Epoque when great people lived for the great life. Great dishes were introduced to the wealth of the world.

It has been said that everyone has their time, and at this period in history. France became once again powerful preparing its native fare for the affluent.

Escoffier, king of chefs and the chef of kings famed for his peaches Melba and the toast affectionately cited for Lady Dame Melba. His cookbook has become the bible of the gastronomes.

QUEEN VICTORIA, as well as all the courts in Europe, were known for lavish spreads of French food. The regal fare had made its mark. French was taught throughout Europe and spoken in the chic cafes where high society spent afternoons licking glace flavored with mocha, fromboise, chocolat, or vanilla.

Diamond Jim Brady famous for his three loves: Diamonds, Lillian Russell and gourmet dinners from 10 to 20 courses.

Sara Bernhardt—the sweetheart of the stage and the love of every chef loyal to his cause of haute cuisine.

Brillat Savarin, author of "La Physiolgie du Gout" perhaps set the pace for gracious dining. His book became popular shortly after his death in '828 and became an inspiration for the culinary masters.

Forty years later, the chef that made a little girl's name immortal was born; he was Henri Charpentier.

FOR CREPES SAKE!

The sun was behind some clouds on that nostalgic afternoon at the Cafe de Paris in Monte Carlo. The salon had walls that were treated in festive baroque stylings with radiant ruby drapes swagged back behind the ormolu brackets to let the fresh Mediterranean breeze gla iate the air for the 12 o'clock patrons.

During the high season shortly before the turn of the century, the Prince of Wales (King Edward VIII) was lunching with several guests and he always took kindly to new and interesting desserts and a special liking to me, your host Henri Charpentier. There is nothing that pleased me more than to do my very best for an unmistakenly well-groomed gentleman whom I had the greatest respect for.

'With my permission, he named the infernal dish in honor of the only lady present at the table.'

By DUGLASS DUGLASS

"What must we call this delectable ambrosia?" asked the prince.

My answer in an equally proud manner wasn't very clever, Crepes Princess.

With my permission, he named the infernal dish in honor of the only lady present at the table. Crepes Suzette. What else could a king do?

Eat your heart out, Escoffier!

CREPE BATTER

3 eggs separated
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup milk
Pinch of salt and nutmeg

Method

Add flour to bowl. Then add the egg whites along with the sa't and nutmeg. Blend to a paste. If mixture becomes gooey and lumpy, add one of the egg yolks and blend with a spoon or a rubber spatula. Continue adding the egg yolks until batter is a velvet paste. Slowly add the milk. Try to avoid unnecessary bubbles. Strain through a fine sieve. Mixture should be thin; more milk may be added.

Crepe in English should be pronounced like the words "shep", "prep", "bebe", or "hep". It is not "craip". This adds a certain snob appeal to the accomplished culinarean.

In a nine-inch Teflon omelette pan, lightly coat it with a vegetable oil. The best way is to moisten a cloth with oil and wipe.

Set on a medium heat for a second or so. Then add the pate de crepe, about a tablespoonful and quickly swish it around until the entire bottom is covered with a very thin coating. Thi would be a terrific time to practice a waist exercise. You will need it after eating this dessert!

Do not let it overcook. Remove from heat and with your fingers pick it up at the edges and flip it over and cook it. If the crepes are for a dessert and are not going to be stuffed or baked they should be cooked to a light brown.

Fold in half. Then fold again to form a wedge one-quarter of a circle.

SUZETTE SAUCE

*Vanilla sugar
Skin of 2 oranges
Skin of 1 lemon
Orange blossom water (1 shot)
Kirsch (2 shots)
White curacao (2 shots) or Grand Marnier
Juice of 2 oranges
Juice of 2 lemons
Sweet butter ¼ lb.
Rum (1 shot)
Maraschino (½ shot)
*VANILLA SUGAR: 3 vanilla beans into a quart jar of granulated sugar. Cover for three days. The sugar will absorb the vanilla flavor.

This sauce can be made weeks in advance. It will improve with age.

The orange skin can be achieved by using a vegetable peeler coming towards you. Same process with the lemons. With a sharp knife cut the peelings extremely fine like slivered matches. Add to chafing dish or a saucepan with the following: Butter, vanilla sugar, juices, skins, and bring to a boil.

This is the sauce that can be made in advance. Before serving, reheat in a flat pan if possible. Open the crepes and set in the sauce. Turn it over, and fold like the practice fold. However, this time you will need two table forks or tongs. Bathe all the crepes in the sauce on a low flame (this calls for some expertise, so a low flame is recommended until you are good).

Add the remainder of the cordials and flame. Keep your face away from the pan when you ignite the sauce to create this moveable feat.

Twentieth century suggestion, serve alongside roast duck or turkey instead of a potato or stuff them with wild rice pudding using the same suzette sauce.

For crepes sake: Crepes Suzette. (Photographed by Barbara McClellan)

'Thin cakes in orange sauce seemed to fit the bill nicely which was an old family favorite that needed some work on to make it socially acceptable.'

"Henri," he shouted, in regal warming manner. "What will you set before my table and my guests?"

Thin cakes in orange sauce seemed to fit the bill nicely which was an old family favorite that needed some work on to make it socially acceptable.

I STOOD behind the cooking cart very sure of myself, stirring away at the lemony orange butter sauce, to which I added white curacao from the tropical islands, rum and maraschino—all from the cordials cart. Then, suddenly my copper sautoire that contained the thin crepes burst into an inferno of figurative flames soaring to the tips of the glittering chandeliers. I was beside myself, and being French needless to say I lost my cool, momentarily of course.

As soon as the flames subsided I tasted what I had thought would be a disaster. However, after sipping the hot bouquet I realized that the flaming of the liqueurs unearthed the fragrance into a symphony of delicate flavours truly worthy of a king.

Crestwood strike has ripples through region

Tim Richard writes

The oldest rule of trade unionism is that you hit the company when it's fat. In good times, the company can pay for a big settlement and is anxious to avoid interrupting production.

They didn't learn that elementary rule in Crestwood School District, our suburban neighbor in Dearborn Heights, and there may be far-reaching effects that will reach to the school districts of Redford Township, Garden City and Westland —if not the entire state.

Indeed, by the time this edition reaches you, teachers in your district may have "hit the bricks" in sympathy strikes because Crestwood attempted to fire its entire staff of striking teachers.

THIS OBSERVER of local government has been anticipating such a situation for a long time. Here's the picture:

A small school district — 200 or so teachers...Bad economic times...Voter resistance to taxes...Shrinking school enrollments with less demand for teachers...Hordes of certified college graduates and housewives looking for work at any living wage. Although it had worked 1½ school years without a contract, the Crestwood Education Association couldn't have picked a less favorable time to get tough.

The idea of union is that if enough workers withhold their services, the company can't fire everybody or get everybody tossed in jail. The idea hasn't worked for Crestwood teachers because there are too few of them and too many potential replacements — 400 persons applied for their 180 jobs the first day.

The union could be broken. It has happened in other industries, although it's rare. Usually, the result is that when labor costs get too high, customers go to different brands (small foreign cars), different materials (aluminum and plastic instead of steel) or substitute products (gas and oil heat instead of coal). Ask the UAW, the Steelworkers and the Mine Workers how many members they've permanently lost in the last 20 years.

TEACHERS UNION leaders have short-term and long-term options.

In the short term, they may walk out by the thousands in neighboring districts so that neighboring school boards will put the heat on Crestwood trustees to settle at any cost.

In the long run, we may wind up with regional or statewide collective bargaining. The notion is not far-fetched. Crestwood may replace 180 teachers, but can western Wayne County replace 10,000 teachers who strike?

In general public esteem, organized teachers today stand as low as organized physicians did when they opposed medicare, but the teachers have an incredible amount of political clout.

Remember that Gov. Milliken was backed by the Michigan Education Association. Bear in mind that House Speaker Bobby Crim is a teacher by trade, and so are a lot of other legislators. Recall that voters in November elected to the State Board of Education Barbara Roberts, MEA staff member, and Roger Tilles, a teachers union attorney. Recollect that the State Board of Education already contains a Northern Michigan University instructor, a former Eastern Michigan University instructor, and others with teachers union orientations.

WHETHER ORGANIZED teachers can actually wield all the political clout they need to get regional or state bargaining remains to be seen. The candidates they supported may not behave the way organized teachers expect.

Regional bargaining? Binding arbitration? New laws?

All are less than satisfactory solutions. There simply is no substitute for mature collective bargaining by managers and unionists who have wisdom and know when to use restraint.

The Stroller

How moods change

By W.W. EDGAR

The public prints are filled with stories about the mood of the people as the country, seemingly, is headed for one of its worst depressions, or recessions, or whatever else one cares to call the slump in the economy.

These stories raise such questions as "How will the people react as the lines of the unemployed grow longer and the cost of living shows little sign of declining?"

Trying to predict the mood of the people is a hazardous task. But his years along the sports trail have convinced The Stroller that moods can change quickly and people react surprisingly.

HE THOUGHT about this as he spent long hours, along with many others, watching the college football bowl games. One of the greatest examples he ever has seen happened years ago when the University of Detroit was at the height of its football fame.

It was the final game of the season and the Detroit Titans, as they were known, were undefeated and eagerly awaiting the meeting with Georgetown, one of the football powers of the east.

They were at an emotional pitch when fullback Tom Connell ran the opening kick-off back for a touchdown and it seemed they were headed for an easy triumph.

But footballs take funny bounces, and they found themselves not only trailing, but badly beaten physically, as the first half ended with the score: Georgetown 13, Detroit 7.

THE TITANS were a forlorn looking group as they headed for the dressing room, expecting a good bawling out from Gus Dorais, the shrewd little coach.

As they sat in a huge circle, heads down, they awaited the lecture. Instead, Dorais ignored them. He spent the time chatting with friends as the players looked at one another in surprise.

Finally, with the two minute warning, Dorais turned to the players and said, "Boys, I just want to speak with you for a moment."

Then he said, "The four yars I spent at Notre Dame were the happiest of my life. The memories of football those days will live forever, because we were having fun.

"You fellows aren't having any fun out there today. You are making work out of what should be a game. None of you has a smile on his face. You are too serious.

"Just remember one thing, whether you win or lose, Six Mile Road will still cross Livernois tomorrow morning. Now, go on out there and have some fun that you, too, can long remember."

The coach had taken them by surprise. They raced on to the field laughing—laughing at the fact they hadn't been bawled out. You can imagine what happened.

Playing with the zest they had shown all season, they conquered the eastern giants, 33-13, and the survivors of that team still laugh about the victory and how it came about.

THE MOOD had been changed from depression to triumph in a few moments.

On another occasion, The Stroller attended a game at Notre Dame when the immortal Knute Rockne was the head man. On this particular day the Fighting Irish were taking a bad beating from Minnesota.

At half time he joined an old friend, Joe Magdisohn, the referee, to visit the Irish dressing room.

As we approached, Rockne was standing outside.

"Two minutes, Rock," Magdisohn called.

"Don't tell me," Rock answered, "Tell the team. I quit."

AS WE OPENED the dressing room door we saw an unforgettable sight. Father Cavanaugh, the lovable old priest, was telling the squad, if they would go out and show some fight, maybe Rock would come back.

It was a moment of real drama.

Rockne's strategy paid dividends. The team returned to the field and gave Minnesota a good licking to earn a victory. And Rockne was back on the bench before the halfway mark was reached in the third period.

So you can never tell. Moods can change rapidly.

That's what will make 1975 an interesting year.

What will happen to bring about the change?

Staff defends school

Editor:

The staff of Miller School, in response to the comments made by Gregory Feierfeil at the Plymouth School Board meeting Dec. 9 and published by the Observer & Eccentric Dec. 11, would like to extend a public invitation to him to visit Miller and to talk with us so that he may understand the philosophy and organization that exists. A personal invitation has been extended by Mrs. Spaniel, our principal.

Through an emphasis on creative problem solving and writing, we encourage children to think through concerns and to express them after thay have thoroughly investigated the topic. We expect the same of Mr. Feierfeil. When did he observe classes at Miller? How long? How many classes?

We are sure that Mr. Feierfeil's statements were the result of misinformation and we welcome the opportunity to show Mr. Feierfeil why we are proud to work at Miller.

Schoolcraft, NOW clash on 2 issues

SUBURBAN LIFE
Monday, January 6, 1975 (W,G-9A)*11A

By SHERRY KAHAN

Schoolcraft College and the northwest Wayne County chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) are in conflict on two fronts as the new year begins.

One battle concerns the future of women's programs and the women's resource center at the college. NOW President Jeanette Shanks has expressed fears they might be on the decline.

The second is over the recent appointment of Mrs. Jean Christensen of Livonia as head of women's programs and the center. Sylvia Vukmirovich, former president of NOW and chairperson of the organization's education task force, says she was not the most qualified applicant for the job.

DR. C. NELSON GROTE

JEANETTE SHANKS

JEAN CHRISTENSEN

SYLVIA VUKMIROVICH

MRS. SHANKS, a Plymouth resident, initiated the confrontation over the programs and center as one of her first acts after being elected president.

She fired off a letter to the two women members of Schoolcraft's board of trustees, questioning whether Dr. C. Nelson Grote, college president, and Mrs. Christensen share NOW's dedication to programs for women at Schoolcraft.

To Mrs. Nancie Blatt and Mrs. Rosina Raymond, she wrote that remarks made by Dr. Grote and Mrs. Christensen indicated "lack of depth of perception concerning the real function of the women's resource center."

The second broadside, a few days later came from the typewriter of Mrs. Vukmirovich, and went to John LaRue, whom she designated as "chairperson" of the Schoolcraft board of trustees. She said that members of her organization "are extremely distressed over the hiring of Mrs. Christensen.

"There are numerous things about this appointment that made it an insult to all women of this community, and every staff and faculty women at Schoolcraft Community College."

THE ANXIETY felt by Mrs. Shanks about the future of the women's programs stemmed from statements made by Dr. Grote in a speech Oct. 11 when he said "the college would have to discontinue courses and programs for identified sexes."

He added: "Classes like physical education for men will have to be discontinued, and modern literature by and about women would be affected, as could the women's resource center, unless equally accessible to both men and women."

In a recent interview Mrs. Shanks said, "We have to have the center," adding that "many women from the area need it as a place to have their confidence restored and their consciousness raised about their own potential.

"Women have special problems when they return to school and they need the special assistance provided by the center. By getting together with other women they learn how to solve some of their problems."

She added: "I find it surprising that considering the affirmative action suit filed by NOW against Schoolcraft, dealing with discriminatory hiring of college curriculum personnel, that Dr. Grote has zeroed in on the women's recreation center, women's literature and men's gym."

DR. GROTE MAINTAINED he has no intention of discriminating on the basis of sex. He blamed the situation on the interpretation by the Department of Health, Eduction and Welfare of Title IX of the Higher Education Act.

He said he made the statement "while the strict guidelines of Title IX, as handed down by HEW, were in force."

Dr. Grote said recent amendments to this legislation will correct some of the misunderstandings.

Since then, Dr. Grote added, there have been hearings conducted by HEW —hearings in which Schoolcraft vice president of student affairs Edward McNally and Mrs. Raymond participated—and the expectation is that new guidelines soon will be handed down.

"IT IS POSSIBLE that under the new guidelines we may have to modify the name and function of the women's resource center," he concluded.

"But in my judgment the only thing we might have to do is explain that the center is accessible to both sexes."

Mrs. Shanks said men always have been welcome to the center.

That was also the position of Mrs. Christensen, center of the other Schoolcraft-NOW storm.

She said the information in the center is mainly for women "but that doesn't mean men are excluded."

MRS. CHRISTENSEN said the NOW charge that she is unqualified for her new post caught her by surprise and said she regretted that it came "before I have had a chance to initiate any programs."

Mrs. Vukmirovich insisted her letter was not intended to downgrade the new appointee.

In her letter to LaRue she said she found Mrs. Christensen "a very nice and charming person but totally unprepared to handle the important position to which she has been appointed."

"An interview with her," Mrs. Vukmirovich wrote, " disclosed that she knows very little of what is happening to or with women, not even including the Women's Movement."

Her protest, she maintained, stemmed from her belief that "there were people who were more qualified in terms of their academic credentials, including at least one with a doctorate degree" and the fact that members of NOW "feel we have an obligation to monitor all practices of importance to women."

SHE SAID AFTER Mrs. Nancy Dufour resigned from the position now held by Mrs. Christensen, "I contacted Mr. Ronald Griffith and asked him who would be involved in the hiring process."

"I was never really told who would be," she added, "but I was told who would not be — women faculty, women administrators and volunteers at the women's esource center."

Donna Minock of the English department also called Griffith and received a similar answer, said Mrs. Vukmirovich.

"Since none of us who are so involved and concerned about women's programs were involved in the selection process, we are interested in what the criteria was for hiring," she said.

"If academic credentials were not important, what was?"

THE NOW MEMBER also complained that the year and a half that Mrs. Christensen worked at the Detroit Institute of Technology "did not prepare her to develop and carry out meaningful programs or women."

Pointing out that NOW is only one of the groups which helped develop women's program's at Schoolcraft, Mrs. Vukmirovich stated that "certainly all of these people are going to question the integrity of the college when they learn that Schoolcraft has not hired the most qualified applicant for the job."

She concluded by requesting that "a full explanation of this appointment be furnished to us as soon as possible."

MRS. CHRISTENSEN responded, "I am sorry that NOW has found me unqualified before I have had a chance to initiate any programs.

"I plan to do the best job I can for the women of the community and Schoolcraft. I would welcome the cooperation of NOW, and I feel we could accomplish much more by cooperating than by fighting.

"I intend to attend the Jan. 21 meeting of NOW to try to establish communication with its members. I want to help unite all groups working in behalf of women."

YMCAs have package to help families

By MARGARET MILLER

Family communications skills, neatly packaged in a series of courses and set up in a variety of nearby locations, is a new offering of the YMCA.

The courses themselves—including "Talk to Me," "Family Focus," "Parent Effectiveness Training," "Marriage Enjoyment," "Divorced Mothers,"—have been put forward at various times in recent years.

What's new is putting them together in a coordinated Detroit area YMCA resource center and offering them on a cluster arrangement in Y centers in Livonia, Westland, Farmington, Dearborn and northwest Detroit.

THE WHOLE PACKAGE will be on view Wednesday, Jan. 8 during an open house that will be part of the Livonia Family Y 10th anniversary celebration.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Family Y building at 14255 Stark, there will be an overview of the family communications and skills courses, with information on which will be offered in which locations and the dates, times and fees involved.

Workings of the coordinated resource center, headed by Barbara Fischer of the Northwestern YMCA, will be outlined at that time too.

MRS. FISCHER AND Linda Grandstaff, Livonia Family Y program director who worked out the cluster plan, talked about the coordinated project.

"It's been a dream for several years on the part of Y staff people in this area to put together the various offerings in this area into a single department," Mrs. Fischer said.

"The various branches have assorted resources, and it seemed we could offer our members more help in the area of preventing family conflicts that way.

"A three-year study was completed in July of this year, and the resource center was launched, funded by the YMCA through a United Community Services grant."

MISS GRANDSTAFF pointed out that through this program the YMCA is filling a need of society in general.

"The family is the focal point for all sorts of relationships," she said. "It's the launching pad for the people who make things run, and it's the communication skills learned in the family that later are used in many other relationships."

"But up to now, little or no training has been offered in the matter of family communication skill, Miss Grandstaff added. "There are the 12th grade family life courses in schools and some basic psychology in adult education, and that's about it," she said.

"By offering this set of courses and coordinating them, we feel we are filling a real need."

THE LIVONIA director recommended the cluster system—having different courses offered in different locations in the same general area.

"Because these are new programs, they are not well understood and thus the number of people interested is small at first," she explained.

"By having each one draw from the cluster area, we can have several going and have enough people in each program to make a good group."

Those interested in any of the courses will be able to sign up in their home Y, she added, and those who want to participate in future classes also will be able to leave their names so they may be informed.

OF THE CURRENT offerings, three are part of the national YMCA program. These are "Family Focus," "Positive Parenting," and "Parent Effectivness Training."

Four others have been developed through the YMCA in the metropolitan Detroit area. Included in this category are "Talk to Me," "Divorced Mothers," "Marriage Enjoyment" and "Parents and Children Talking."

The local programs, Mrs. Fischer said, have been developed either by Y personnel or by others in the field of human relations who are offering their courses to the Y center.

"FAMILY FOCUS" is a six-week program which will be offered Wednesdays from 7:15 to 10:15 p.m. in the Dearborn YMCA, 19500 Ford Road.

Taught by Sherry Hyde, a certified workshop trainer and instructor, it develops the theory of Transactional Analysis as it involves family relationships.

The course content will include the analysis of communications, the parent, adult and child elements of personality and their related influences and a discussion of using the principles in family living. The cost is $25 per person or $40 per couple.

"Positive Parenting" also will be offered in the Dearborn YMCA in the near future. Dates, times and other details may be learned by calling the Y office.

"PARENT EFFECTIVENESS Training" will be offered at a bargain rate of $20 per person in an eight-week course beginning Wednesday, Jan. 8, in the Northwestern YMCA, 21755 W. Seven Mile, Detroit.

Fred Giltrow, Northwestern Y program director, will teach the sessions, which will include learning to identify roadblocks to family communication and acquiring skills of listening, confronting and family problem-solving. Each session will run from 7 to 10 p.m.

Also scheduled in the Northwestern Y will be "Marriage Enjoyment," a four-week course to be taught Wednesdays beginning Jan. 15 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. by Gordon and Linda Kruse of Troy.

The course was developed by Mrs. Fischer and the instructors, an American Lutheran Church pastor and his wife. Designed as an affirmation for married couples, it includes identification of marriage strengths, appreciation of individual marriages and and learning how to better communicate needs and understand those of one's spouse.

A second four-week segment will be designed by the group and the leaders and will include skill practice and working on specific needs of couples involved. The cost is $22 per couple for each four weeks.

TWO COURSES have been scheduled for the Livonia Family Y.

"Talk To Me." will meet for four Tuesdays starting Jan. 28 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

It will be taught by Dorothy Murphey, program director for the Wayne-Westland YMCA, and the class outline will include listening skills, identification of the components of helping relationships, self-awareness and family dynamics.

The cost is $10 per person or $18 per couple for Family Y members and $15 per person or $28 per couple for nonmembers.

Dave Anderson of of staff of Methodist Children's Village will teach the "Divorced Mothers" course, scheduled for eight weeks from Jan. 29 to March 19 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays in the Livonia location.

Developed out of his experiences in individual counseling, it covers concerns such as dealing with an ex-husband, adjusting visiting rights, balancing time demands and helping children make adjustments. The fee is $24.

THE FAMILY YMCA, 28100 Farmington Road, will be the location for "Parents and Children Talking," a course designed to involve children over 12 years of age along with their parents.

The 15-hour course will be offered during the month of February and will be taught by Lawrence Gage and Neil Austin, Oakland Community College faculty members and partners in Metro Counseling Associates Incorporated. The fee is $20 per person.

Lottery myths exploded; poor aren't exploited

An average of almost 5.3 million tickets are sold each week by the Michigan Bureau of State Lottery.

That is an increase of only about 100,000 over the previous year as reported in the annual report for the 1973-74 fiscal year made by the lottery bureau.

A total of almost 275 million 50 cent state lottery tickets were sold for the 52 drawing dates in fiscal '73-74, which runs from July 1973 to June 1974.

THE ALL-TIME high for one week 50 cent ticket sales was Jan. 17, 1974, when a total of 7.3 million tickets were sold. The special attraction that week was a bonus offering top prizes of $2,000 per month for a year.

A higher record was reached the week the $1 Jackpot game was introduced. On July 25, 1974, sales totaled 8.3 million tickets — an all-time high for all state lotteries.

Sales tended to follow the same seasonal pattern in '73-74 as in '72-73 with spring being the best sales season and summer the worst. That trend was offset somewhat this year with introduction of the Jackpot game.

Gus Harrison, lottery commissioner, says most major gains in terms of overall sales are related to the introduction of new games or special bonuses, rather than natural causes.

"It has become a truism that public interest must be stimulated, and the public seems to react with increased sales in proportion to the effort used to appeal to them.

"The public likes a change now and then," Harrison continued, "so change is increasingly becoming a way of life at the Bureau of State Lottery."

This year, the Michigan lottery met with direct competition from neighboring states with Illinois beginning its lottery on July 30 and Ohio on Aug. 12.

MOST TICKETS are sold in Region I which includes Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Monroe counties.

This region, which has 51 per cent of the state's population, accounted for 62 per cent of total lottery ticket sales. Next came western Michigan, which has 25 per cent of the state's population, with 18 per cent of total ticket sales. The lowest sales were recorded in northern Michigan, above the Bay City line, and in the upper peninsula.

Retail food stores sell more tickets (26 per cent), proportionately, than other kinds of agents. Other high sellers are bars, lounges and night clubs (17 per cent), party stores (11 per cent), and drug stores (11 per cent). The lowest sellers were department stores, leisure outlets, and gasoline stations.

The bureau's number one agent in overall sales was Ella's Grocery in Monroe, whose trade consists primarily of out-of-staters. Top seller in Wayne-Oakland-Macomb area is George Kelber, owner of an Interstate gas station in Royal Oak.

Among the major chains selling lottery tickets, Kroger's is the volume leader followed by Farmer Jack's. The chain with the highest weekly sales average per store, however, is Meijer's Thrifty Acres stores which now has a hypermarket in Canton Township.

Eleven of the 24 Meijer's outlets are among the 36 agents with 5,000 plus weekly sales averages through June 30, 1974. The average agent sells about 700 tickets per week. Usually only a few hundred are sold by agents in rural areas and several thousands by agents in urban areas.

Area agents among the top 36 agents, selling 5,000 tickets or more per week, include Meijer's in Ypsilanti, Hudson's Ticket Service in Detroit, Pastime Bar in Warren, a Chatham supermarket in Dearborn, a Chatham in Warren, Farmer Jack in Warren, Kinsel Drugs, Detroit, and Chatham stores in Roseville and Centerline.

THE AVERAGE CUSTOMER is a 45-year-old factory or office worker who lives in suburban Macomb County.

His wife, who probably works at least part-time, is the mother of three children aged 8-18. Each buys about two tickets each week at the neighborhood bar or drug store. She buys hers at the grocery store each week. Their average annual income is between $15-$25,000.

Harrison says the mythical customer is probably closer to truth than fiction, based on research by the bureau. Macomb County has shown an eagerness to purchase tickets disproportionate to its population, he adds. "As a predominantly white, blue collar, slightly upper middle class area of the state, Macomb is the best kind of market for lottery ticket sales."

Research conducted for the bureau by the Leo Burnett Co. of Soutfield, Harrison explains, indicates the very rich and very poor aren't usually good lottery customers.

"Suppositions that the poor might be spending their 'milk and bread money' on lottery tickets is simply not borne out by the research. Our customers tend to use discretionary income for lottery tickets — possibly in lieu of other 'luxury' purchases. If the lottery is a tax, it isn't overly regressive.

"Blacks and other minorities tend to be average customers. Generally speaking," Harrison adds, "ticket purchases appear to be in line with population in black communities and prizes won also closely follow population lines.

"Blacks represent about 12 per cent of the state's population, and blacks have won about 12 per cent of prizes which can be tabulated on a racial basis."

The bureau's appeal to ticket buyers through advertising has been low-keyed, Harrison says, and generalized in nature, with no specific attempt to appeal to specific geographic areas or ethnic groups.

"It is our belief that the 'state lottery' should retain this general approach, which is fair to those outstate as well as those in the metropolitan area, and fair to all ethnic groups. Each ticket has an equal chance to win, regardless of where it is sold."

WINNING IN THE lottery is, Harrison says, more than anything else, a factor of ticket sales. Geographic areas where sales are brisk tend to have more winners.

The statistics bear this claim out, although figures are thrown off somewhat in counties such as Delta, Crawford and Clinton which have had $1 million winners. Delta County, in the UP, had two $1 million winners even though ticket sales are low there. "But that simply proves that lightning can strike anywhere," Harrison quips, "and in Delta County's case, can strike anywhere twice."

Total prizes won through June 30, 1974, are about $102 million which is roughly the amount realized by the state's general fund in revenue for the same period of time.

The first $1 million winner was Hermus Millsaps of Taylor. Other winners include two from Detroit, two from Toledo, and from Sterling Heights, St. Johns, Mt. Clemens, Gladstone, West Unity, Ohio, Allen Park, Grayling, Rapid River, Kinde and Hamtramck.

Wayne County, which ranks first in the state in population, ranked first in the number of prize dollars won — $13.5 million. Since 1973, Wayne County residents have won a total of $34 million in prizes to maintain its number one ranking.

Michigan residents in '73-74 have won a total of $32 million with out-of-staters winning $1 million. These figures don't include the unclaimed prize money.

FISCAL 1973-74 saw two major innovations in basic lottery operation.

The subscription system, or "Chance of a Lifetime Club," was started in August 1973 and grew to more than 100,000 members by the end of the fiscal years. It includes members from all 50 states and several foreign countries.

Members select their own three-digit numbers and keep those numbers for 12, 24 or 52 weeks — paying a membership fee less than the over-the-counter price of tickets.

Vending machines made their debut in early 1974. Initial testing justified expansion of the vending system to almost 75 units in 50 different locations. Individual stores may have from one to five machines, depending upon customer volume.

Jackpot, the $1 lottery game, started July 25 this year for an initial eight-week trial run and became a permanent lottery feature on Oct. 10.

WHERE THE MONEY goes is a persistent question received by the lottery bureau, Harrison says.

The Lottery Act provides for all net revenues from the lottery to be deposited in the state's general fund. Lottery revenues represent about two per cent of total general fund revenues. The 1974-75 general fund expenditures appropriated funds as follows: 44 per cent for education, 39 per cent for human services, and 17 per cent for other programs.

The bureau's figures are audited by Haskins & Sells. It shows total expenditures this fiscal year of almost $140 million. Among the highest expenditures are $64 million in prizes, $8 million in agent commissions, and $5 million operating expenses.

Start the new year by helping others

Anyone out there who likes to help people?

The Plymouth Center for Human Development needs volunteers. It plans to conduct an orientation program for them Jan 7, 9 and 11 in the center at 15480 Sheldon, Northville.

Volunteers may choose to work in an office or lab. Or they may decide to work on a one-to-one basis with a mentally-retarded resident.

A volunteer who wishes to work with a resident can decide whether he would do best with a child or an adult, a male or a female.

He then works out an informal contract involving himself, the program director and Sam Cordaro, volunteer coordinator. The contract spells out what needs to be done to help the resident and gives the volunteer some kind of basis on which to proceed.

THE CENTER prefers each volunteer to work four hours a week. This may be days or evenings during the week, or on weekends. Usually the volunteer will talk, read or play games with the resident. He can always approach the program director for further ideas for activities for "his" resident.

They come from Canton Township, Plymouth, Northville, Westland, Garden City, Livonia, Redford Township and other towns.

AT A RECENT annual volunteers awards banquet held at the center Dr. William Womack, superintendent, told volunteers that because of the state of the economy, services contributed by them take on added value.

He stated that the real value in volunteer service is in speeding the education process for the mentally retarded by creating a normal, homelike environment in the center.

Sam Cordaro noted that 150 volunteers, 45 foster grandparents and 159 college students have contributed 64,566 hours during the past year. This is equivalent to the time worked by 18 full time employes.

A husband and wife team from Farmington contributed the greatest number of hours. Mrs. Faye Sills won an award for spending 11,000 hours in volunteer work. Phillip Sills was honored for contributing 6,000.

MRS. JEAN NENSHAW of Plymouth contributed 2,000 hours. One thousand hours were donated by Brian Flynn of Dearborn, Virgil Huey of Livonia and Mrs. Lois Pryce of Inkster.

Mabel Nelson of Plymouth gave 500 hours, and Donna Dudley of Westland, Beth Norton of Northville and Sandy Woodard of Plymouth all gave 200 hours.

Bulldogs outcheck Franklin, 4-2

'Sleeper' Bentley wins hockey tourney

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

The "sleeper team" of the Suburban Hockey loop caught everyone by surprise.

Mike Dudley's Bentley Bulldogs captured top billing in the Observer & Eccentric's George Gee Tourney and for the second consecutive season, it was Paul Ferguson's Franklin Patriots that choked in the finale.

It was Bentley, 4-2 over Franklin. Both clubs were coming off overtime victories in the semis. Bentley dumped Stevenson in a single overtime, 7-6, and Franklin stunned Churchill in four overtimes, 4-3.

"I am not surprised we won it," commented Bentley coach Dudley. "Our kids were hungry. We had two players on vacation, and Jim Cox broke his thumb the day before.

"I went with two lines and two sets of defensemen and they did the job."

FRANKLIN'S PAUL FERGUSON
"We played bad hockey."

THE GAME'S first score came at the 9:02 mark in the first period when Tom McLean bested Franklin netminder Chuck Latour. Stan Dilabbio followed suit for the Bulldogs 32 seconds later, and Bentley was never to be headed.

The big surprise in Dudley's card had to be the starting of junior Kevin Stachelski in the Bulldog net.

Dudley had gone with Tim Oakley against Stevenson and the Bulldog coach felt six goals against was just too much.

"I went with Stachelski on a hunch," said Dudley.

That hunch paid off for Bentley, and Stachelski went on to stop the Patriots and earn the tourney's most valuable player award.

"We plain outchecked them," added the Bulldog head mentor whose crew had never made it into the tourney final before.

BENTLEY FELL to Stevenson in the first year of the tourney in the semifinals and dropped a triple overtime clash to Franklin last year in the semis, 4-3.

"This had to be our best forechecking game ever.

"Franklin was overconfident for this one.

"Churchill thought they should beat Franklin and it didn't and Franklin thought it should beat us and it didn't. But I really don't think Franklin played that bad a game.

"We just outplayed them and Stachelski did the job."

The two goals, 33 seconds apart in the opening period gave Bentley a good cushion. At the 2:58 mark into the second, Stan Dilabbio netted his second score, Steve Lemieux assisting and Ferguson found himself down, 3-0.

With Bentley's Dave Manoogian off for slashing, Franklin's Mike Barta beat Stachelski to make it 3-1. Two minutes later Gerry Kmet slapped a loose puck by Stachelski and it was a new ballgame at 3-2.

THE WHISTLE then almost did the Bulldogs in with Mike Yoksich getting two minutes for holding and Tom Halberda two for interference.

Franklin's Nelson Yanick missed from point-blank range and the closest the Patriots could get during that two-man advantage was hitting the goal post.

At the 13:32 mark in the second, with Franklin's Gerry Kmet off for tripping, Glen Stevens rifled a shot right through Latour and it was 4-2 Bentley.

The third stanza opened with Franklin once again having a two man advantage with Tom McLean off for charging and Manoogian off for tripping. But once again the Bulldog defense did its thing and slammed the door on the Patriot tourney bid.

There was no scoring in the third period, just three penalties and all collected by Bentley.

"We played bad hockey," was the Franklin coach's first comment.

"I am really disappointed. Everyone was off. The turning point had to be Bentley's first goal. We started pressing right then and it just wasn't to be.

"Our kids played as 15 individuals. I can't really see things changing much now in what will probably be an up and down season.

"It will simply be a matter of regrouping and starting all over again."

GC West trips Crestwood, 63-57

By JIM BRADLEY

Garden City West basketball coach Chris Babler still has his Tri-River League express on the right track but it's way behind schedule.

After being sidetracked by Cherry Hill, 50-47, and almost derailed by Taylor Kennedy before steaming to a 62-60 overtime win, West barely nudged by Crestwood, 63-57, Friday night.

"The two-week layoff hurt us and we played poorly. But it sure is great to play that way and win," Babler said after West's third win in four Tri-River League starts.

THE TIGERS upped their season record to 6-2 on a balanced scoring attack. Guard Dave Niles paced three starters in double figures with 13 points while center Mike Susko had 12 and forward Gary Hutnik added 10.

For the strike-bound Chargers, Jim Novicka had 23 and Jim Lewis canned 20 to keep Crestwood close.

In fact, Crestwood shot 47 per cent as they hit on 28 of 60 floor attempts while West's Tigers sank 25 of 46 for 54 per cent.

It was Garden City West's 13 free throws that made the difference. Crestwood only went to the charity stripe three times and made them all.

A disturbed Coach Babler saw his team score only four baskets in the first quarter as the Tigers looked more like a freight train than a title express.

BUT THREE BASKETS apiece by Niles and Susko in the second quarter engineered a rally that took the Tigers from a 10-8 deficit to a 24-22 halftime edge.

Novicka, whose right hand was deadly all night, pumped in four buckets in the second quarter for 12 first half markers.

Hustling Gary Hutnik's six points, added to four each by Jay Gooch and Ken Chavis, sent West winging to a 19-13 quarter advantage, and a 43-35 lead after three periods.

Charger Jim Lewis burned the cords with five jumpers in the last quarter and teammate Novicka hit on three to keep Tiger fans uneasy until the final buzzer.

Although West twice held leads of 10 points, it didn't have the killer instinct to put the Chargers away.

And it could be that inability that finally catches up with Babler's squad.

IT WON'T TAKE long to find out. West will face the toughest week of its schedule thus far as it travels to Garden City East Tuesday and on Friday visits Melvindale, one of the favorites in the Tri-River chase.

"It's always a tough ball game when we visit East," the Tiger skipper offered. "They'll want to avenge last year's loss to us and it's always a very emotional time when we play each other.

"We're really looking forward to going to East."

Garden City East coach Billy Joe Young and his team were in the stands watching West struggle against Crestwood and are already mapping plans to "cage" the Tigers.

Last year, Young's Panthers employed a deliberate style (some call it a stall) to stay close to West before the taller Tigers pulled away for the coveted win.

Pinckney bounces Clarenceville

"We just forgot about playing a full 32 minutes of basketball," stated Clarenecville basketball coach Bob Wolf after his Trojans opened the new year with a 62-43 loss to Pinckney.

"We played 24 minutes of good basketball but simply forgot about the last quarter," added the Clarenceville coach.

Trailing by only two points heading into the last eight minutes, 38-36, Clarenceville could muster only seven points that last quarter while Pinckney rattled off 24.

Thus is shattered Clarenceville's solo win of the current campaign. After dropping their first six games, the Trojans ousted St. Agatha in the 7/8 finale, 49-34. But the new year opener set things straight again around Trojan territory.

"Maybe I am looking at it optimistically, but we played our best basketball of the year, except for the last quarter.

"Pinckney's press just got to us in the fourth."

CLARENCEVILLE won the rebound contest, 40-24, with Rick Beyer hauling in 17 grabs. Beyer was also high Trojan scorer with 15 points.

Clarenceville took off to an 11-6 first quarter lead but fell behind at the half, 25-24. Pinckney took the third stanza, 13-12, and it was a two-point difference with eight minutes remainings.

Pinckney exploded in the fourth, outscoring Clarenceville early, 16-1. That solo Trojan point was a charity toss by Larry Kaplan.

Clarenceville hit only one of seven from the floor that quarter while Pinckney connected on six of eight and 12 of 15 from the floor.

Clarenceville now has back-to-back Wayne Oakland loop clashes at home against Andover (Jan. 10) and South Lyon on Jan. 14. Box score:

Stevenson matmen pin Franklin, 34-15

After opening the 1974-75 wrestling season with a tie, the Spartans of Livonia Stevenson crushed rival Livonia Franklin, 34-15.

In the 29-29 tie with Milford, Stevenson got winning performances from Marty McDougall, Tom Parent, Jim Treharne, Jeff McLain and Larry Winey.

The tie was gained in the heavyweight slot when Doug Stein pinned Ed Mikulec of Milford.

After losing the first four weight classes against Franklin, Stevenson proceeded to take the final eight. Treharne, McLain, Mark Eisenhauer, Tim Sheppard and Stein won on decisions. Tom Canty, Larry Winey and Wally Hoppe pinned their opponents.

Stevenson's junior varsity squad topped Milford in its opener, 51-28 and Franklin, 46-18.

Stevenson opens the new year home against Waterford on Jan. 9, junior varsity starting at 6:30 p.m.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

The Northville Downs law suit, which seeks to force Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley to give it summer racing dates in 1975, may be decided on Monday, Jan. 13. That's the date set by Judge Thomas Foley for hearing after denying a request from the defendant for dismissal.

The case went before Judge Foley Friday morning after being delayed for a week and after hearing the arguments from the state for dismissal, he made his decision and then decided to delay further hearing until Jan. 13.

There is still some conjecture as to who won what in Friday's action. John J. Carlo, executive director of Northville Downs who is the plaintiff, feels he won a big point in that the Racing Commissioner lost his original motion.

Now from all indications the judge will hear presentations from both sides and go on with the hearing from which may come one of the biggest tests of the racing commissioner's authority. It has always been assumed that the commissioner has absolute authority over such matters as dates and once set and announced there just couldn't by any changes.

Carlo is challenging this. For the past 29 years, Northville Downs which pioneered night harness racing with parimutuel betting back in 1944, has had choice summer dates. Two years ago the commissioner cut the number from 48 to 36 and then down to 24 in 1974.

In announcing the allotments for 1975, he gave Northville 83 nights of winter racing, beginning Jan. 1, with none in the summer. Carlo immediately protested and finally decided to have the courts make the decision.

He is asking for 57 nights during the summer. The commissioner in announcing his 1975 dates gave Hazel Park and Wolverine Raceway 165 nights during the summer, beginning in early May and carrying through October.

A week ago, we would have been willing to wager a bob or two that the commissioner would win this case hands down. Now we're not so sure. The denial of the dismissal is a big point for Carlo and could be some indication of the thinking of the judge.

We'll know a lot better about the situation on Jan. 13. With everything that is hanging on the outcome of the cause, it is hoped that Foley hands down his decision and then, if there is to be an appeal, there'll still be time to decide that and the dates.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE that Wally McIlmurray, the 48-year-old driver from Novi and environs, is the 1974 driving champion at the Jackson-Northville meeting.

It appeared with a week to go that Tom Harmer, the brash 24-year-old from Utica, had the crown in hand. But then Tom ran into one of those slumps and Wally started to go with the result that McIlmurray wound up the season with a .384 winning percentage compared to .372 for Harmer.

Wally had 72 starts, 18 wins, 12 seconds and nine thirds. Harmer had 69 chances with 14 firsts, 15 seconds and 10 thirds.

Neither grabbed honors as the winningest reinsman. That went to 34-year-old John Sutherland with 26 victories in 119 trips to the starting gate with John MacDonell next in line with 21 and a total of 140 starts.

McIlmurray will have his name engraved on the huge Leon A. Slavin memorial trophy and received a gift from President and General Manager Ms. Nanette Slavin Rakieten. Should he win the trophy three times, then it goes home with him for his trophy case. Otherwise it will be offered each year until someone does have three championships.

The Jackson-Northville campaign wound up as just about the most successful ever with the average nightly handle at $316,019 for an all-time high. The total attendance was 167,024 for an average of 3,212, both figures were well ahead of 1973.

And for that Ms. Rakieten was extremely grateful. Especially when one considers Jackson-Northville had a week without competition a year ago when Windsor was dark due to a strike of the mutuel clerks. This year the track faced competition all the way from across the river.

Metaphysics gaining in popularity

Answers to questions with no logical of natural reasons, the search for self-identity and purpose, knowing someone's words before they speak. It's all part of metaphysics and parapschology and it's all the focus of an overwhelming and increasing interest.

"I could even put a figure on the increase," said Mrs. Sol Lewis of the Michigan Metaphysical Society in Berkley. "But there has been a tremendous surge in the last 10 years."

People are searching for a relationship between man the the universe, she said. By examining the supernatural or extra powers they might find some answers.

"People are looking for themselves, they are looking for their own identity, trying to find out what makes them tick," she said, adding that the chaotic world situation is also sending people to outside forces.

But in that search or even as spectators, there is a great deal of misunderstanding by the general public, she said.

For example ESP, extra sensory perception, isn't one kind of power. "It is a heading under which clairvoyance and all of the phenomena come under," explained Mrs. Lewis.

While meta-physics and para-psychology are reaching academic levels, they don't hold answers, knowledge or even relief for everyone and often draw criticism and skepticism.

Below, three such topics are discussed by persons who study and practice them: numerology, psychometry and hand reading.

Psychometry

By CHRISTINE WALDEN

Irene Rucinski placed a ring on the tip of her left index finger and slowly began turning it. Eyes closed, brows furrowed, she began predicting a future and describing a past.

Mrs. Rucinski is a psychometrist. A ring to her is like a fortune teller's crystal ball. But she deals with "vibrations" which she says objects transmit and which she can feel and translate.

The vibrations are put there by the owner of the object, she believes. She explains that somehow the individual's energy source is absorbed by the object, which in turn causes the vibrations.

PERHAPS IT was Peter Hurkos who first brought attention to psychometry. His assistance in police investigations gave him and psychometry nationwide publicity.

Since then, interest in psychometry and other aspects of metaphysics and parapsychology has grown. But Mrs. Rucinski is careful not to attribute her powers or those of others to a special "gift."

"Generally you say it's a gift given to you from God. But it's something that each individual has a tendancy for and as you work at it, the power increases," she explained her belief.

Six or seven years ago, Mrs. Rucinski said she discovered her "tendancy." Today, she said, she uses it primarily for experiments and demonstrations.

"I generally don't do it for individuals, unless a person is really in need," she said.

SHE DOES use psychometry for archaeological digs. Recently she made her first attempt to help archaeologists determine the past of an area outside of Milwaukee.

"I told them it was the first time I'd ever done anything like this," she said. "They just told me to do whatever I wanted."

The archaeologists took Mrs. Rucinski to the area in question. In a few moments, she kicked off her shoes and began running through the woods.

"Anytime I'd come to something I would stop and give information and take off again."

Two other psychometrists who visited the area at separate times came up with the same conclusions as Mrs. Rucinski, she added. The conclusions are being checked by historians and are proving, she said, to be quite accurate.

Of course, Mrs. Rucinski doesn't proport to be 100 percent correct.

"Occasionally I have been completely right. But no one can be right all the time. They say, however, that if a psychometrist is 30 percent correct, he is good."

Mrs. Rucinski said she has an 80 percent accuracy rate.

PSYCHOMETRY neither scares nor overpowers her. When she reads an object for an individual, she explained, she does so not to program the person but "to give them information so they can avoid something."

She also, unlike some other psychometrists, said she transcribes directly from vibrations to words. For some psychometrists, she said, the vibrations come through as pictures which are then described.

For her, she said, "The vibrations come through as words. It's like my mind is an open channel, a hollow tube."

Numerology

By SHIRLEE IDEN

What's in a name?

Do numbers vibrate for you?

Well, if they do, you should look into numerology.

Numerologists and those that believe in this metaphysical practice think there's a great deal in a name and a definite vibrancy to numbers.

Elaine Lewis, herself a numerologist, calls it a very old, occult science.

"It's a form of study of vibrations that deals with numbers and with letters," she said. "It can give insights into an individual's character and personality. It can tell a person what career they're suited for."

NUMEROLOGISTS believe that each individual in some way has chosen his own name, even his own parents.

"It's a free-will factor" is the way Mrs. Lewis puts it.

In what is called a numerascope, a practitioner of numerology assembles his findings.

Raw materials for a numerascope are simple: first, your passive birth name, then your current name, that is the name you now carry whether it is a nickname or married name.

The other important ingredient is your birth date.

From these, believers say they can cite personal characteristics, predict personality type, and tell whether a person is shy or aggressive.

"IF YOU believe in reincarnation, and most metaphysically inclined people do, then you believe you are the sum and substance of all you've been in past lives," she said.

Mrs. Lewis said the number two indicates you have balance.

"If seven is your mental or mystic number, you have artistic or creative tendencies," she said.

"You can learn why you react in certain ways to certain things or people and you can learn a great deal about your own motivations."

She said she's a number one.

"Although you could say I'm a pioneer or leader, I'd rather be a co-chairman than a boss."

NUMBER FOUR people, she thinks, are very organized but have to be guided.

"If the letters F or O are dominant vibrations, then home, families and possessions are all important."

She stressed there are two sides to every vibration.

"Hitler, for instance, had many negative aspects to his personality, but he had the ability to get people to do things because of his vibrations."

If you understand your own vibrations, she believes, you can foresee what challenges will come into your life and at what age level you will be beset by crises.

"You can also pinpoint a personal day that is your special, good day," she said. "You can get rapid insight when the proper mechanics are applied if you understand the positive and negative factors.

"Numerology is the simplest of all applied sciences or any of the ologies. It's a vastly interesting subject, but a very simple study."

It is said that the ancient Chinese and Jews used numerology believing that all numbers vibrate and each letter of the alphabet has a numerical value.

Hand reading

By LORAINE McCLISH

Camille Clements is a devotee of hand reading. She calls it "the science of hand reading because it is based on invariable laws."

The study is not to be confused with palmistry.

"Palmistry is limited," she says. "Hand reading begins as you approach someone and see how a person carries his hands. Then shaking hands reveals an emotion. The touch. The color of the skin. The structure of the hand. A closed fist is a closed mind. A criminal's hand is always out of proportion to the rest of his body or it has some distortion, just as his mind is distorted."

She says she studies the shape of the hand, each finger, each flange on each finger and the width or narrowness of the nails. Skin texture is included in her study and manual work does not affect the facets of one's character she says she can detect in her study.

ALL OF THESE points in the hand have to do with one's basic personality, she explains.

"Test this yourself. The next time you meet one of your set-in-their-ways friends, look at his thumb. It will be straight, rigid, inflexible. It won't curve back."

Another test she described is to look at the hand of someone you consider successful. "He is sure to have a large span between his thumb and fingers. The more excessive the span, the broader the mind."

Health is told in the fingernails, she believes. As each nerve ending in the finger is connected to an organ in the body, Mrs. Clements says tiny spots on the nails "are the clues which tell me if you are a candidate for a heart attack, liver touble, why you can't have a child or what have you."

MRS. CLEMENTS has been at her study for about 15 years and has been connected with two societies concerned with metaphysical research.

Out of this affiliation she has been involved with matching up palm prints with astrology charts, which has proven to her satisfaction that the "palm is a minature horoscope with all the planets in your horoscope charted on your hand."

Every mount and every depression in the palm has a meaning, she believes, and the past is mapped out. Abilities and weaknesses are there, as well as heriditary factors, she says.

So are thoughts, she adds: all those miniscule lines are the ideas you have brewing and they will grow on the hand, and change as you drop those ideas or bring them to fruition.

The future is told in your palm, she explains, but "most predictions are potential. There is no such thing as a complete, mapped out destiny. We are still free to guide our lives to their own destiny.

"Most of us are constantly maneuvering ourselves to our own fate. If you are marked for a fate, it's because of your own doing and that is going back to the basic structure of the hand and not doing something about the weaknesses we know we have."

She concluded, "But the more you know about yourself — and that's the reason to study the hand — the more apt you are to do something about it."
